Personal Statement: Rebecca A. Stametz is the Administrative Director, Innovation Research & Evaluation for the Center for Clinical Innovation in the Institute for Advanced Application. The Center for Clinical Innovation is a physician led think tank, analytic and evaluation team and software development group that reengineers care delivery through clinical care process redesign and health information technology. From a scientific perspective, her interests includes exploring patient and family engagement strategies, transparency in medicine, and the evaluation of new health information technologies. Additional duties as the Administrative Director include strategic development, implementation of rapid cycle evaluation, continuous discovery in healthcare and financial management of the Center. Dr. Stametz holds a Master of Public Health from East Stroudsburg University and a Doctorate of Adult Education from the Pennsylvania State University.

Hobbies/Interests: Fitness; travel; local foods

Why this project is important to me: We have an exciting opportunity to deliver the best patient-centered care that is aligned with preferences and values, and that is delivered efficiently and reliably by leveraging technology and innovation.
